Sometime after the downfall of civilization and before the age of superhumans

A Doctor's Office.

It's hot as shit. Dress accordingly.

The DOCTOR is there alone. He fans himself with a handheld fan. A NURSE enters.

NURSE

Good afternoon, Doctor.

DOCTOR

I've told you plenty of times that my name isn't Tor.

NURSE

I could have sworn it was.

DOCTOR

Yet you didn't swear at all.

NURSE

My apologies. Good fucking afternoon, Doc.

DOCTOR

Good boy. It's too hot for fucking.

NURSE

Should I break my nose so I'm appropriately ugly for fucking?

DOCTOR

Perhaps.

NURSE

Yes, the Haps Regulations do suggest such a thing.

DOCTOR

I was unaware your pronouns were it/its.

NURSE

I enjoy being dehumanized, Doctor.

It's pronounced "the."

NURSE

Your name is The?

"The human eyes." You are quite good at seeing. I know you dream of looking out for humanity.

NURSE

It's preferable to looking in.

DOCTOR

I suppose you are better than self-reflection.

NURSE

Mirrors have nothing on me.

DOCTOR

A relief. They're a horrid gang.

NURSE

Not a one of them is scary.

DOCTOR

Only two are. To be shaken down by them would be humiliating.

NURSE

Maybe I should go see them, then. For "the human eyes" purposes of course.

DOCTOR

Dolphins already aren't homo sapiens. There's no need to dehumanize them. Ack! Never mind. This is no time for your constant horniness, Nurse.

NURSE

Are my horns growing again?

DOCTOR

Devilishly.

NURSE

Would you shave them down for me?

I'm no barber. DOCTOR

Of course not, Doctor. NURSE

Ker. DOCTOR

What? NURSE

Doc Ker. DOCTOR

I have nothing to do with boats. NURSE

I would guess not. DOCTOR

The sun is quite hot today, Doctor. NURSE

Ker. And yes. The son is much too hot to fuck it today. DOCTOR

You would fuck the sun? NURSE

Jesus? No. Well. Maybe. Not my son though, of course. DOCTOR

As in you are no Christian or as in you have a different sun you would fuck? NURSE

Are you not someone's son? DOCTOR

I am not a ball of gas. NURSE
